State's Energy Facilities Siting Board approves controversial substation widespread Despite community opposition as well as opposition from over a dozen Massachusetts elected officials the state's Energy Facilities Board (EFSB) unanimously approved Eversource's highly controversial plan to build a new substation in East Boston at the City Yards in East Eagle Square on Monday afternoon.

In a marathon meeting that lasted several hours and the adoption of several amendments to Eversource's plan that included a safety plan, flood zone management and community mitigation the board eschewed Eastie's already overburdened industrial infrastructure and rubber stamped the plan.

Despite state Energy and Environmental Affairs Secretary Kathleen Theoharides saying at Monday's hearing that the substation would be placed in a "heavily, heavily industrialized area within an environmental justice community that has historically suffered disproportionate environmental harms and a heavy burden of infrastructure" she still voted in favor of Eversource's plans as an EFSB board member.

During the hearing Theoharides dismissed historic calls for leaders to begin exploring a move to more renewable energy and begin taking climate change seriously as a 'false politically motivated narrative".

"This context weighed heavily on my mind as I've spent the last two weeks thinking about this decision, since our last meeting," said Theoharides. "The notion that a substation is part of a fossil fuel past is a false politically motivated narrative. Substations are a piece of infrastructure that will be critical in our ever growing electrification of building and transportation sectors."

Although she conceded that substations may deliver increasing amounts of clean and renewable energy produced by wind and solar in the future.

But as of now Theoharides said, "the communities of East Boston and Chelsea have a right to re-

Distribution of mitigation funds from 99 Sumner St. project gets BPDA approval

The Boston Planning and Development Agency (BPDA) this month voted to approve mitigation funding to several local non-profits as part of the development project at 99 Sumner St., also known as the Hodge Boiler Works

The BPDA board approved $49,000 at its February meeting that will be split between 13 local organizations including the Salesian Boys & Girls Club, East Boston Social Centers and the Veronica Robles Cultural Center.

The funds will be disbursed from the 99 Sumner Street Project Community Benefits fund maintained by the BPDA from contributions made by the developer.

In 2017 the BPDA ap-

When the site was owned by the DeNormandie Companies few years ago, the group pitched a scaled down version of their original plan to build an eight-story, 119 unit residential complex. DeNormandie decided to build a five-story, 95 units building that is 80,000 sq. ft. less than the original

The Davis Companies scooped up the property and reverted back to the original plan of building 119 condo units. The Davis Companies will also pay into the BPDA's fund to create affordable housing units off site to the tune of $2.19 million.

JPNA approves Eastie Landing's Tall Ship liquor license plan

By John Lynds

At its February meeting, the Jeffries Point Neighborhood Association (JPNA) voted to support the Navy Yard Hospitality Group's (NYHG) efforts to seek a liquor license for an outdoor dining proposal that would include a Tall Ship and large patio near Pier I in East Boston.

JPNA members voted 33 to 6 in favor of supporting NYHG's plan to apply to the city for a liquor license for its "Eastie Landing" proposal on the waterfront.

Street in Eastie and other locations in Charlestown, the Seaport and Faneuil Hall, approached Massport with the idea of docking a 242 foot steel hull Tall Ship at Pier I to create a unique dining experience for Eastie residents. Over the spring and summer NYHG docked a tall ship at the pier and began an extensive rehab of the ship to accommodate three bars and a dining area.

There will also be some shipping containers that house small retail operations. On the pier itself NYHG will be using string lights and materials such as the electrical ca-

Renegade's Pub looks to transfer ownership and liquor license to longtime manager

At the February Orient Heights Neighborhood Council meeting attorney for Renegade's Pub, Kristen Scanlon, told the council members that current owners of Renegade's Pub are planning on handing over ownership of their East Boston location in Orient Heights Square to longtime manager Katie Daly.

Scanlon said that while the ownership would change, everything at Renegade's, including the juicy burgers the pub has become known for, would remain the same. However, Daly would need approval from the Boston Licensing Board for a new neighborhood restricted full liquor license. Renegade's opened in 2017, a venture by Chelmsford native Peter Ackerman and his partners Greg Weinstock and Ryan Pozerycki. The three owners have decided to divest from the Eastie location and focus their efforts on Renegade's second location in Londonderry, NH.

Scalon explained that because the current neighborhood restricted full liquor license is non-transferable Daly would need to apply and receive her own liquor license.

"The neighborhood restricted liquor licenses were created by the city in 2014 for seven different neighborhoods, including East Boston, and various Main Streets districts around Boston," said Scanlon. "Renegades was lucky enough to get one of them. But because of the restrictions imposed on the neighborhood licenses you technically can't transfer them with an ownership change and Katie (Daly) has to apply for a new license. We're just making sure everyone in the neighborhood knows what's going on with the license but first and foremost, there's absolutely no changes proposed for Renegades besides who owns the business which is the incoming owner, Katie Daly."

AN UNFATHOMABLE NUMBER

When COVID-19 first came into our national consciousness more than a year ago, it was just a blip on the news. The prospect that a viral bug originating halfway around the world would alter every aspect of our lives seemed inconceivable.

And even if the virus did come here, America was not some third-world country. We had confidence that the world's best medical care system and scientific minds would work together to prevent something as seemingly trivial as a mere virus from overwhelming our nation.

But one year -- and 500,000 American lives -- later, that which was unimaginable has become a nightmarish

To be sure, the unprecedented incompetence and outright malevolence of the previous administration contributed substantially to amplify and worsen the problems brought on by the pandemic.

But even in a best-case scenario, the virus would have upended every aspect of our lives. Although the politicization of the virus contributed to our nation's suffering, the pandemic still would have caused death and economic turmoil to an unprecedented extent.

The official count of 500,000 COVID deaths was surpassed this week. Let's hope that as we move forward and as the daily numbers of deaths and hospitalizations continue to decline, we have learned that despite our high-tech lifestyle, we are no match for Mother Nature.

The pandemic has exposed many problems in our country, including the inadequacy of our health care system, especially for minority groups, and the danger of politicizing scientific information.

Hopefully, we have recognized our multitude of mistakes and we will make the necessary investments in our health care and pandemic detection systems to ensure that we will be ready for the next pandemic.

As the philosopher succinctly put it, those who do not learn from the past are condemned to repeat it.

SPRING IS IN THE AIR

This winter has not been a particularly difficult one for us in the Northeast, although February has been colder and stormier than January.

But with temperatures reaching the 50s by the middle of this week, there is the feeling that spring is just around the corner.

We realize that "spring" is a relative term for those of us living on the Massachusetts coast, but undeniably the onset of warmer weather will provide more opportunities to get outside and enjoy the fresh air and sunshine after months of being cooped-up amidst our pandemic quarantines.

Spring traditionally symbolizes rebirth and rejuvenation. That thought is especially meaningful in the spring of 2021.

Hopefully, the coming of spring and the availability of mass vaccinations will enable all of us to emerge from our cocoons and allow us to return safely to our pre-pandemic lives.

Gubernatorial candidate and Eastie resident Ben Downing raises $100,000 in a week

By John Lynds

Gubernatorial candidate, former State Sen. and Eastie resident Ben Downing hit a major fundraising milestone this week.

Downing, a progressive democrat who announced his candidacy for Massachusetts Governor on February 8, raised his first $100,000 in one week according to campaign filings. Downing, who served as a State Senator from Western Mass but now lives in Eastie with his wife and two sons, said he was excited by the support since his announcement earlier this month.

"These are good numsaid Downing Monday. "The exciting thing was there were no lobbyists donations, no super pac donations so it's all real...real voters donat-

Downing said so far the donations have poured in from friends, family and political supporters. "It's just exciting to see people who you know write a $10 check or $100 check," said Downing. "But whether it's a $10, $100 or $1,000 check it's people saying they think it's time for a fair and stronger Massachusetts, I was really excited to see the reaction to my candidacy."

While easily raising the first $100,000 feels good Downing admits there's a lot of hard work ahead no matter who throws their hat into the ring for next year's election.

"It takes time and I'm not blind to how much of an uphill climb it is," said Downing. "Gov. Baker still has a sky high approval ratings but based on the calls, whether it's fundraising calls. political calls, outreach calls or just talking with people about what they're seeing day to day--people are hungry for something different. People are hungry for us to take on big challenges and be able to execute day to day."

In the end Downing said he's been able to start garnering support in every corner of the state. "We've got supporters from Cape Cod to the Berkshires so I'm excited about continuing to build off of that base," said Downing.

Eastie resident and former State Sen. Ben Downing raised $100,000 in one week for his bid for the Massachusetts Governorship.

John Walkey, an Eastie resident and member of the group Green-Roots who has been fighting the substation plan said EFSB's decision, while disappointing, is hardly surprising. "We know that our national regulatory system for our energy sector is dominated by the regulated industry, so why should Massachusetts be any different?," said Walkey. "It does really expose the hypocrisy of those who talk up climate resiliency and social equity while at the same time continue accepting money from corporations like Eversource and effectively doing their bidding. This is not what democracy looks like; it is what systemic environmental racism looks like. And this is not the end of this fight by a long shot."

Walkey said activists plan to appeal this decision to the State Supreme Judicial Court and will be challenging their application for a Department of Environmental Protection Waterways Division Chapter 91 license.

"This isn't a fight you walk away from because this is where we live, where our children play, and where we already grapple with so many other environmental burdens that affect our health," said Walkey. "If they can convince us that this substation is needed, which they have yet to do, they will still have to convince us that Massport, by far the largest single user of electricity in East Boston, is not the most appropriate and sensible location for

The substation was approved to be sited at the City Yards back in 2017. The proposal voted on by the EFSB on Monday was to allow Eversource to move the proposed substation to western edge of the City Yards and further away from American Legion Playground.

Rep. Adrian Madaro

who lives on Eagle Hill with his wife maintained that the substation proposal is the wrong idea, provides the wrong energy source, and is in the wrong location.

"East Boston continues to be overwhelmed by more than our fair share of environmental burdens. We don't need another," said Madaro. "My wife and I are expecting our first child and will be raising our family on Eagle Hill. Our kids will play at the playground right across from this proposed project, as I did as a child. Should this project proceed, our children will grow up with this substation and all the effects it brings. East Boston is well known as an environmental justice community that has historically dealt with one of the most disproportionate shares of environmental burdens in the Commonwealth."

Madaro went on to say that Eastoe residents suffer from a variety of environmental burdens including a major international airport, a highway running through the neighborhood, oil tanks along the shoreline adjacent to this project site, and more.

"This misguided substation proposal should not move forward. It will become yet another environmental burden on a community which has shouldered more than its fair share," he said "Throughout the public process, my colleagues and I, in addition to countless residents of East Boston have raised several important and well-founded concerns regarding the substation proposal. Chief among them is the proposed location and the safety concerns it pres-

The proposed substation is sited on the waterfront of Chelsea Creek and would be located in a flood zone as recognized by the City of Boston.

"With well documented flooding of the area during several major storm events in the past few years, and increased flood risk of the East Boston shoreline due to climate change a constant factor considered by state and city agencies in planning processes across the neighborhood, concerns about locating a major electrical substation in this area are not unwarranted," said Madaro "Moreover, the substation is located in close proximity to a large field of oil tanks along the creek, another potential safety risk. Such concerns are further compounded by the fact that the substation lies on the edge of the Eagle Hill neighborhood, a densely populated working-class area, and directly abuts two city parks, the American Legion Playground and the Condor Street Urban Wild, which are

MVES RECEIVES $5000 GRANT FOR SOCIAL ENGAGEMENT PROGRAM

Mystic Valley Elder Services (MVES) recently received a $5,000 grant from the Everett Citizens Foundation in support of the MVES Social Engagement Program.

"Thanks to the grant from the Everett Citizen Foundation, the Social Engagement Program has been able to reach out to many lonely and isolated seniors in the community and provide them with friendly conversations and feelings of social connectedness which is vitally important during these challenging times," says Social Engagement Program Coordinator Linda Cornell.

Open to MVES consumers, the Social Engagement Program is designed to help improve the health and well-being of isolated older adults in the community by providing meaningful social connection—whether be through regular visits (when safe to do so), telephone calls, or email.

"Fostering closer relationships between the City of Everett and local organizations like MVES, who provide direct support and services to our residents, is precisely the reason I pushed for the establishment of the Everett Citizens Foundation. Since its inception, the ECF has provided grants to 50 local organizations and I want to thank the members of the Board for their diligence and our partners at Encore Boston Harbor for their financial support," said Everett Mayor Carlo DeMaria. "The ability to engage socially is vital to the health and wellbeing of individuals. We are inherently social beings. I am very proud that the Everett Citizens Foundation voted to provide financial support to MVES's Social Engagement Program," said Matthew Lattanzi, Esq., Staff Support to the Everett Citizen Foundation.

The Everett Citizens Foundation was established by the Host Community Agreement between the City of Everett and Wynn Resorts that was approved by the voters of Everett in 2013. The Foundation receives an annual payment of $250,000 from Encore Boston Harbor, which is distributed among local groups, associations, and programs with important City initiatives.

If you are interested in knowing more about Mystic Valley Elder Services' Social Engagement Program or other programs, please visit mves.org or call 781-324-7705.

Councilor Edwards files hearing order on ZBA reforms

Special to the Times

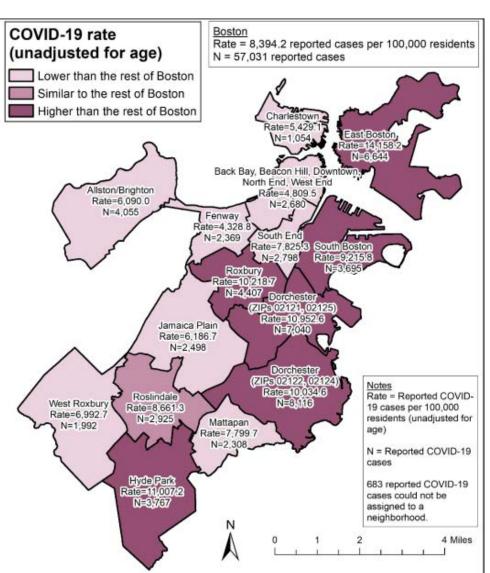

Boston City Councilor Lydia Edwards has filed a hearing order to discuss the implementation of reforms to the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) that she proposed and were implemented by Mayor Walsh in an executive order in February of 2020.

"The ZBA continues to be one of the main sources of constituent calls and emails to my office," said Councilor Edwards. "Last year I filed some reforms that the Mayor implemented through an executive order. We've made some progress in making the board more accessible and transparent, but not all of the commitments have been met and the pandemic has added new challenges to accessibility. We need to check in and have a conversation about what we can do to ensure residents have a voice when projects in their neighborhood are going through the process." The hearing will also address financial disclosure requirements that were required as part of the executive order.

"I filed a hearing order recently on the inclusionary development policy because we need to be exploring all options to create and preserve affordable housing. It's more important now than ever," added Councilor Edwards. "Being able to know who owns what will be key as we move forward with affordable housing reforms."

The hearing order will be introduced at Wednesday's council meeting and assigned to a committee. A public hearing will then be scheduled where members of the public will be able to testify.

On Friday the BPHC released its weekly COVID-19 stats by neighborhood that tracks infection rates and COVID testing results in Boston neighborhoods.

ported two weeks ago.

Citywide, 29,757 residents were tested and 3.8 percent were COVID positive--a 21 percent decrease from the 4.8 percent testing positive two weeks ago.

At at press briefing last Thursday Mayor Martin Walsh said the average number of positive tests recorded each day was 209. That's down by about 13 percent from the week before, and daily new cases have continued to go down since early January.

"Our current community positivity rate was 4.8 percent," said Walsh. "That's below our 5 percent threshold, and the lowest positivity we've seen since October. The rate went down in every neighborhood, and every neighborhood is now below 8 percent, which is good news. An average of 4,263 people were tested each day. That's up by three percent over the week before and does not include college testing." The Mayor said Boston of Boston will continue to advocate on behalf of Boston residents, and increase equity in this process for any resident or community that may face barriers. He said the City is focusing on access in the Black community; the Latino community; the Asian community; and our immigrant communities.

"We're also focusing on access for elderly residents and those with disabilities," he said. "We're doing targeted outreach to these communities through City departments, Community Health Centers, and nonprofit partners." Eastie's COVID infec-

Scalon said Daly has been with Renegade's since it first opened four years ago and is the current general manager of the restaurant and bar that promised to clean up a forgotten corner of Orient Heights Square with a successful business model. "I think and I hope most people would agree that they delivered on that promise and continue to do so and are good neighbors in that location," said Scanlon. Ackerman, who is the bar's majority owner, will stay on in an advisory role in case Daly needs any help from him after he transfers the ownership of Renegade's In 2017 Renegade's owners transformed the old Victory Pub into a nofrills pub complete with wooden tables, a zig zag bar, a large chalkboard listing the constantly rotating beer selection and a huge mural commemorating all things Eastie.

The limited menu lives up to Renegade's mot-'Beers, of Burgers and Bourbon'. The appetizers range from onion rings to Engine 56 fries with smoked bacon, renegade sauce, crumbled bleu cheese, and fried jalapeños. There are also stuffed tater tots, buffalo wings, panko crusted chicken tenders and salads. But what really keeps people coming back to Renegade's are the burgers. All burgers are large enough to fill a hungry stomach but not so overpowering that you'll need a nap after downing one of these juicy treats.

The staple burger is the Renegade Burger with renegade sauce, muenster, arugula, and red onion jam. There's the Blue Burger with bacon, red onion, arugula, local bleu cheese, and bleu cheese sauce or, our favorite, the Bandit Burger with bourbon BBQ sauce, fried onions, bacon, cheddar and red onion jam. Renegade's also offers up a veggie burger with quinoa, black beans, garlic mayo, cucumber, tomato and lettuce, a blackened salmon burger and fried or grilled chicken sandwiches done two different ways.

According to police, while stopped in traffic on London Street the Boston Police Youth Violence Strike Force officers observed a group of males congregating in the walkway area of 23 London St. The officers then observed one of the males, later identified as Erick Mariona, starting to walk towards the cruiser.

As Mariona got closer to the cruiser the officers observed a firearm in his right hand. He continued walking towards the cruiser, then stopped and allegedly raised the firearm pointing it directly at the officers.

The officers immediately exited their cruiser and ordered Mariona to drop the gun. Mariona turned and began running down an alleyway towards Mariona then slipped on the snow and fell to the ground. It was only then that the officers were able to apprehend him and recover a firearm. The firearm, a 9mm, was loaded with 10 rounds of ammunition in the magazine and one round in the Department of Early Education and Care adopts innovative parent co-pay model for families receiving child care subsidies

Staff report

The Department of Early Education and Care (EEC) adopted a new, first-in-the-nation, ent co-pay model that will dramatically reduce child care payments for families receiving state subsidies by exempting a percent of each family's family income up to the income above the poverfederal poverty level. The Board of Early Education and Care approved a parent co-pay schedule that will reduce the average co-payment for families from 10% to 2.4% of their overall monthly income. This change marks a substantive step forward in EEC's efforts to make child care more accessible and affordable to families across the Commonwealth. Since March 2020, EEC has fully covered the cost of co-payments for families receiving state subsidies during the current public health crisis, totaling more than $43 million. Over the last year, EEC worked with the Urban Institute, a national organization with expertise in child care subsidies, and with other family and child care provider advocates to develop the new co-pay model. Under the leadership of Commissioner Samantha Aigner-Treworgy - who was appointed in August 2019 - the fee scale is the first in the country to address the impact of co-payments on the lowest income families by creating the federal poverty level exemption. "This progressive reform will not only provide relief to most families that are eligible for child care subsidies, it will also ensure consistency and fairness in parent contributions as their income

rises," said Education

Secretary James Peyser.

ty threshold that ranges from 4% to 15% of eligible income, and parent copays will only be required when a family's income rises above the threshold. The percentage of families in Massachusetts required to pay a co-pay is expected to drop from 72% to 58%, and 98% of these families will now pay a co-pay of 7% or less than their overall income, the federal benchmark of child care affordability. The new model uses a copay schedule built on 28 incremental income ranges by family size, spanning incomes from 100% of the poverty threshold to 85% of state median income, which is the maximum income eligible for child care subsidies under federal regulations. When considered as a percent of families' full income, copays are expected to range from <0.01% to 12% of a family's full income for the vast majority (99%) of families above the poverty threshold. Co-pays for siblings are also charged at a discounted rate. EEC will build an online calculator and develop additional technology to support implementation of the new parent co-pay schedule. years old. EEC provides

South End State Rep. and emergency room physician Jon Santiago announces bid for Mayor

By John Lynds

This week South End State Representative and an emergency room physician Dr. Jon Santiago announced his candidacy for Mayor of Boston. In a two minute video, produced in both English and Spanish, Santiago tells his personal story and calls on neighbors across the city to join together and write the next chapter of "our Boston story."

Santiago is currently serving his second term as the State Representative for the 9th Suffolk District that includes the South End, Roxbury, Back Bay, and Fenway. He is an emergency room physician employed at Boston Medical Center and also serves as a captain in the U.S. Army Reserve and has deployed overseas.

"We are living through an unprecedented crisis, the impact of which will last far beyond today. It's a turning point for our city, but in it I also see great possibilities," said Santiago. "I see and hear it in the voices of my neighbors, patients, and constituents. I've spent my life in service to others and now I'm running for mayor to lead us through this moment and to a recovery rooted in equity and opportunity. I will bring our city back, stronger than ever. Today, we set out to bring neighbors together to write the next chapter of our Boston story." On Monday Santiago's launch video titled "Our Boston Story" reintroduces the candidate to voters and tells how his early years in Boston led to a life of service - in the Peace Corps, as a captain in the U.S. Army Reserve deploying overseas, an emergency room physician, and as a state representative.

"I've heard from many friends across every neighborhood about the challenges Boston faces in this critical moment and its future," said Santiago. "Our Boston story has always been about hard working people-everyday heroes who dig deep and harness the spirit of our city to keep moving us forward. Beginning right now, we're building a grassroots movement to bring our city together to write our next chapter."

In the video Santiago is seen walking home from an overnight shift in the ER with his voiceover saying it is this time that he often reflects on his life and the future of his community. "To think about my patients and try to understand why they ended up here. The daughter in the grips of substance use; a homeless family looking for shelter; the young man, another victim of gun violence. And now these same families, impacted by COVID-19," says Santiago in the video. "I've come to learn that my patients are a reflection of Boston. Their stories speak to our greatest challenges. Disparities in health and wealth; rising rents; struggling schools. I've spent my life in service to tackle these very issues. I'm running for mayor to lead Boston through this crisis...to a recovery rooted in equity and opportunity."

Santiago grew up in subsidized housing and attended Boston Public Schools.

After college he joined the Peace Corps to help those less fortunate.

"I took an oath to serve in the Army and deployed overseas," he says. "I came back to Boston to work as an ER doctor, now on the frontlines fighting COVID-19. My commitment to service is what compelled me to first run for public office. Every day I wake up ready to serve the people of Boston. But our city is now at a turning point. The pandemic has exposed our vulnerabilities. This moment requires a leader who sees each and every one of you. I'm ready to serve." To accompany the launch Santiago unveiled a new website at www. jonsantiago.org, which is already serving as an online organizing hub and a home for every Boston voice to share input, give feedback, and engage in a dialogue with the campaign. In the days ahead. the campaign will be announcing COVID-safe online citywide organizing events.

Santiago's elected service began in 2019 when he was sworn in as state representative for the 9th Suffolk District. Since then, he has been a leading voice on the COVID-19 response. substance use issues, and vaccine equity across the Commonwealth. He has been appointed Vice Chair of the Joint Committee for COVID-19 and Emergency Preparedness Management. He has been a staunch advocate for organized labor as a former member of CIR/SEIU and has championed transportation equity, environmental justice, and economic recovery for small busi-

RMV encouraging motorists to start to renew expired inspection stickers

Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV) is ramping up

customer communication efforts to encourage anyone driving one of over 584,000 registered vehicles with an expired Massachusetts' inspection sticker on their vehicle's front windshield to make a plan to get their annual inspection and update their sticker as soon as possible. All vehicles registered in Massachusetts must pass a yearly vehicle emissions and safety inspection, also known as the Massachusetts Vehicle Check Program, which is essential to the safety of the Commonwealth's environment and roadways.

At the outset of the COVID-19 pandemic, some extensions were granted to annual inspection stickers expiring between March and May of 2020, however those extensions have since expired and no further extensions are planned. There are 1,800 local inspection stations, many of whom are small businesses, across Massachusetts that are open for business and conducting inspections in accordance with state public health guidelines and safety protocols. Customers are encouraged to visit the Inspection Station Locator to find a location near them and plan their trip to update their sticker.

"Annual motor vehicle inspections are an integral part of helping ensure that vehicles travelling on roadways across the Commonwealth are deemed safe and not releasing dangerous emissions that can be harmful to individuals and the environment," said Acting Secretary of Transportation and CEO Jamey Tesler. "We are thankful for all of the work and collaborative efforts that are currently underway with the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection, Massachusetts State Police, local law enforcement, and key businesses partners and stakeholders to remind customers with expired inspection stickers to have their vehicles inspected as soon as possible."

The RMV is teaming up with the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (Mass-Massachusetts State Police (MSP), local law enforcement, and other business partners to remind customers of this time-sensitive requirement. While driving any motor vehicle without a valid inspection sticker is a traffic violation that may result in a fine and impact individual insurance rates. the RMV is asking law enforcement to use their discretion at this time and help remind and not cite those with expired stick-

"We encourage individuals to proactively check the current status of their motor vehicle inspection stickers, and not wait to schedule a safety inspection, if warranted," said Chelsea Chief of Police and President of the Massachusetts Major City Chiefs of Police Association Brian Kyes.

RMV records show that approximately 584,000 active vehicle registrations in Massachusetts currently have an expired inspection sticker. An email reminder will be sent to the 437,000 individuals with an address on file. Other communication efforts will include social media outreach, reminders to RMV business partners and law enforcement, and buck-slip reminders will be included in registration mailings to encourage customers to "Check Ya Stickah" and take appropriate steps as needed.

NEWS FROM AROUND THE REGION

SIXTY CANDIDATES APPLY FOR DIVERSITY DIRECTOR JOB

CHELSEA - More than 60 candidates applied for the new Diversity Director position within the City of Chelsea - a new department that will have high-level status and will be charged with making City government more inclusive and welcoming. It's a department proposed by City Manager Tom Ambrosino and Councilor Leo Robinson last summer in the wake of the murder of George Floyd, and in response to a list of demands from young people in Chelsea. Earlier this year, the City put together a Hiring Committee chaired by City Attorney Cheryl Fisher Watson. That Committee is currently interviewing candidates, and reportedly has some great options.

Fisher Watson said they had approximately 60 applicants and the Committee has reviewed all 60 applicants. They were ranked and from those rankings, six or seven were interviewed.

The goal will be to forward three applicants to the City Manager for the final hiring decisions.

Councilor Damali Vidot, who is on the Committee, said she was excited about the pool of applicants.

"We have some amazing candidates and we've narrowed it down now to a couple of folks," she announced at the Feb. 8 Council meeting.

A decision is expected in March.

•MORE MARIJUANA

LICENSES Council President Roy Avellaneda has proposed to increase the number of marijuana licenses from four to six in the City. While there was trepidation at first for the new industry, Chelsea has embraced it and already has one recreational marijuana store operating since November. Others are expected and Avellaneda said he hopes they can explore capping the number at six and not four.

"In light of some of the delays because of marijuana expansion, I feel this warranted consideration," said Avellaneda.

However, Councilor Calvin Brown warned caution on the matter, and said an increase in licenses for marijuana outlets was not what voters approved some years ago on the bal-

"When the voters went to the ballot in 2016, it passed in Chelsea," he said. "There were certain expectations of what that meant. Now, to do this is something we need to pay attention to because it goes beyond the intent of the law when we voted on it...We need to slow down

Councilor Damali Vidot disagreed and said the marijuana question passed easily in Chelsea, perhaps as much as 10 percent, and she said there is an appetite for local people to try to get into the industry. To do so, they need more li-

"For Black and brown and immigrant communities this is a chance to build equity and affluence," she said. "This is an opportunity to level the playing field. I don't think we're necessarily moving too fast."

Councilor Todd Taylor said one thing to consider is those that invested in the City and already opened, thinking that there would only be four competitors. With more competitors, he said, that makes their license potentially less valuable.

adding additional licenses and whether it might affect people who have already invested in a license and a business that's open," he said.

"The concern I have is

The matter will be brought up again at a future meeting.

•TAX ON ROAD SALT Council President Roy Avellaneda also proposed at the Feb. 8 meeting a tax on road salt coming out of the Eastern Salt complex

on Marginal Street. He proposed a Home Rule Petition that would allow Chelsea to charge something like 1 percent or less on the sale or transfer of a quantity of road salt. It would be levied on any company with salt storage in Chelsea.

It was moved to a Subcommittee on Conference. •STOP WASTING FOOD

Councilor Giovanni Recupero was quite bothered during the meeting Feb. 8 about many people he sees taking food from the local food pantry relief efforts, and then throwing most of

He encouraged those that don't need the relief food not to take it if they only plan to waste it. He said the problem is much larger than many would expect, particularly in his district.

"Please, if you get food, don't throw it away," he said. "I've been seeing food boxes that people get thrown in garbage cans. I'm in favor of giving out food to those that need it. I'm not in favor of wasting it. Give it to someone that

•IN THE CHAMBER?

Councilor Leo Robinson said he was only trying to ask a simple question of those that have been helped by the City's Business Relief Fund, but apparently it's a question others don't support.

At the Feb. 8 meeting, Robinson asked that the City gather responses about Chamber of Commerce membership amongst those that have taken assistance from the City's business fund. He said he simply wanted to know if they were members, or if they had joined since getting the City help.

Vidot and Council President Roy Avellaneda objected, and said the Council and City had no authority to promote the Chamber of Commerce.

Both Councilor Damali

"I don't see anything wrong with them asking if it's only for informational purposes," said Councilor Todd Taylor.

"I think it's a very simple question to ask," said Robinson.

The matter was voted down 7-3.

REP. RYAN LANDS CHAIRMANSHIP

CHELSEA - State Rep. Dan Ryan was appointed to his first chairmanship position late last week by House Speaker Ron Mariano, with the veteran representative taking the lead on the House Election Laws Committee.

Ryan has served for his first several terms on important committees, such as transportation, but gaining a role as a chairman indicates somewhat of a promotion within the legislative body.

Ryan said this week he knew it was going to be a very busy Committee, with a lot of hearings and testimony to be heard given the changes to the voting and Elections systems during COVID-19. The future of those changes, and any new alterations, will likely be hashed out in his new Committee in the coming months.

"I want to thank Speaker Mariano and his leadership team for putting their trust in me to take on this important role," he said. "The COVID pandemic has certainly tested our resolve as a country and Commonwealth. This past year has laid bare the fragility of many sectors of society. However, out of necessity, we have also pulled together to test some ideas that have been around for a while. Early voting, no-excuse absentee voting and other forms of ballot access initiatives were very popular. It will be a lot work right out of the gate to refine these processes for this year's elections - as well as for the long term. We need to ensure that elections are safe and fair with as much access to the ballot box as reasonably possible."

Due to the anticipated agenda of the Committee, Ryan was not assigned to any other Committees as a member in the coming session.

TDM HEADS TO CITY COUNCIL

EVERETT - After more than a year of discussion about Transportation Demand Management (TDM) within the City's development process, and several months of presentations to the Planning Board, the Board approved a recommendation to adopt a TDM plan - sending the matter now to the City Council for potential passage.

The TDM was proposed and discussed in early 2020, and even before, as development in Everett began to ratchet up and both the City and the development community looked for predictability in regards to parking, traffic and transportation.

Mayor Carlo DeMaria has endorsed the plan that his Administration has proposed via Transportation Director Jay Monty - something that is central to his philosophy of pushing public transit so there could be more density in the buildout along Everett's main corridors. "The whole premise here is we want the Site Plan Review process to take a holistic look at the transportation impacts," said Monty. "Zoning in most communities use parking and traffic as a proxy for transportation impacts. The two are kind of conflicting. The more parking, then the more traffic. It becomes a vicious spiral where there's more parking, more traffic and then more impacts. That's what the mayor has been saying the last several years now." The TDM plan works where it gives developers and the City more choice. Monty compares it to a menu in a restaurant. The developer still has some choice as to what they will choose to mitigate the transportation impacts of their project, but the City sets the menu and what is offered. In that way, there are no surprises and the plan set forth by the developer must be approved at Site Plan Review by the Planning Board.

The items in the plan would be different for every development, depending on the impacts, the size of the development and the location of the development, he said.

"Every project is different," he said. "The 600 on Broadway for example has lots of amenities, good transit and bike and bus lanes that can be used to mitigate. The needs of that will be different from 1090 Parkway, or the Stop & Shop site, where the transit isn't that great... This allows the developer to say what's best for them and their project. Then we work with them for the best plan."

The TDM proposal takes parking and transportation out of the hands of the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA), and puts it within the Site Plan Review process. That allows zoning to focus on zoning, he said, and the Planning Board to work on transportation and predictable impacts and mitigation.

"We really designed this so the Zoning Board had skin in the game," he said. "It gives them more discretion and more power to shape a project...This allows the Planning Board to look at it in a much greater level and produces a project that has mitigated all concerns." The matter will have to go through the City Council process, but the Planning Board has recommended passage. If it does pass, Monty said he will be very interested in seeing how the first few applicants use the process and shape it.

An accompanying piece about codifying residential parking stickers - which have been not allowed for many new developments – is still being reviewed in the Planning Board.

CHANGES AT OLD WOOD WASTE SITE APPROVED

EVERETT - The Planning Board on Feb. 8 approved a minor modification to the newer plan for the old Wood Waste site, a 600-plus unit residential community build on the construction waste yard, and paved the way for the project to start very soon.

Greystar Development's Tammy Copson was at the Board on Feb. 8 for a minor modification to make sure the former conditions on the approvals jived with what the plan is now on paper. The changes clear the path for a potential construction on the site of 650-units of housing in two, six-story buildings with 9,000 sq. ft. of retail space.

Copson told the Board that the 57 conditions on the permit that was given more than two years ago needed some updating so that everything was understood and clear.

"We wanted to clarify some edits of the conditions," she said. "

"(The project) will most definitely start if we can get everything cleaned up," she said. Greystar, the largest residential apartment developer in the world, got involved with the project last summer after taking it over from the former Wood Waste ownership, under Billy Thibeault.

Planning Board member Leo Pizzano pointed out that once the project gets under construction, it's going to be a very confusing situation. That's because there are going to be multiple projects under construction at the same Greystar will like start first, but the 18-month construction period will likely overlap with Grossman Properties' massive project at the Stop & Shop and Block properties' residential project on Second Street. "That will be three massive projects and a fourth on Vale Street that are going to be going all at once and the residents at The Pioneer are going to be wanting to get out of there," he said. "I keep saying that."

The matter was proved 5-0.

PROPER-BLOCK

Block Properties made their second official appearance at the Planning Board on Feb. 8 after a trip there in January for a full presentation. The residential project at Second and Vine Streets was informally introduced to the Board, though, last October.

In January, the development team had appeared before the Board and had a thorough presentation. However, a technology snafu didn't allow all Board members to get questions submitted.

The team was back for those questions on Feb. 8.

The plan is to demolish two industrial buildings on Vine and Second Streets in the Commercial Triangle near the City Line with Chelsea. They hope to build a six-story building with 320 units of apartment housing with 4,000 sq. ft. of retail space and a parking garage. The project meets most all zoning codes, and only needs to complete the Site Plan Review process.

The City has been working on transportation issues and stormwater issues with the development team, and that continues. The developer has ceded a portion of the property fronting Second Street to be used for the Silver Line extension when and if it comes to be. Meanwhile, Block Properties will likely be one of the first groups to work through the new Transportation Management Demand (TDM) plan approved by the Board last month.

An Activity Use Limitation (AUL) for pollution on the site is likely to be filed in the coming months, allowing the developer to provide 5 percent Affordable Housing rather than the usually-required 15 percent.

A vice president at Metro Credit Union, Rizzuto said that to have more than 300 guests attend the gala each year is an extraordinary show of support from the Lynn community for the committee's efforts to promote literacy and education. The gala event is usu-

The committee intends to celebrate its decade of accomplishments at a kickoff event held virtually on March 18 at 6 p.m. The actual gala itself will be held in September. Mayor Thomas McGee,

"Each year we recognize individuals and organizations that have gone above and beyond to educate the public about literacy in the Lynn community," said Rizzuto.

Rizzuto said she is proud of the volunteers who serve on the Celebrate Literacy Day committee including her Metro Credit Union colleague Diana Moreno, whose family has also been a leader in the advancement of the sport of soccer in Lynn.

"They have been dedicated individuals that have really taken time out of their busy schedule to commit to celebrating Literacy Day," credited Rizzuto. "This committee so instrumental in making the event a success.'

MALDEN CATHOLIC HOLDS ROLLING RALLY FOR ACCEPTED STUDENTS

Photos & Story by Marianne Salza

Malden Catholic High School (MC) held an Accepted Students Rolling Rally on February 13 to welcome the incoming Class of 2025. Families paraded in line through the back parking lot, honking their horns in celebration to begin the spirited festivities that included triumphant music and a performance by the MC cheerleaders.

"This has been an outstanding enrollment season," announced Mr. John Thornburg, Headmaster. "We are up to 140 students enrolled."

Scholars filed individually through a line of applauding cheerleaders as their names were announced. With a burst of confetti, Mr. Thornburg presented each student with a certificate of admission on stage.

"Malden Catholic is the only school in the area that has continued to hold in-person classes," explained Mr. Thornburg. "What Malden Catholic has to offer cannot be delayed."

Students received a special $500 waived registration fee, and Malden Catholic backpack gift for registering.
